The Saint Paul's School
Covington, Louisiana

March 31, 2013

Fellow alumni, friends and family,

There was an old bumper sticker years ago which referenced God's affinity for a certain local school, which shall remain nameless, based on the color of the sky. To that theory, I would state that in light of the amount of yellow/gold dust that has been around this month coupled with the color of the sky, I am pretty sure He is a Saint Paul's fan. We certainly appreciate His support and continue to have many recent blessings bestowed upon our school as you will read throughout this issue.

UPCOMING EVENTS:

Please consider joining us on April 6th for the 4th Annual Saint Paul's Crawfish Cook Off. You may refer to the website at www.spscco.com for more information. This is a great event which, in addition to raising money for Hope House and our Alumni Association, has generated as much or more interest and connection with our alumni base than any event we currently host. I once again encourage you to get as involved with Saint Paul's as your schedule will allow before this school year comes to a close.

Please join us on Saturday, May 4th at 6pm in the school cafeteria for a cocktail party which will be open to ALL alumni, which will include both food and adult beverages and will be free of charge. We are blessed to have the assistance of Mr. Eddie Riecke and Mr. Jimmy McCune in hosting this event, and we hope that you will consider joining us. For the purposes of catering, we ask that you RSVP to development@stpauls.com by Monday, April 22 in the event that you will be attending

For various reasons, we are in the process of restructuring what was formerly known as reunion weekend. There will be no such event for the remainder of this school year nor in the summer. However, we are currently working with individual classes on their milestone reunions, one of which is the Class of '93 who will be joining us at the Crawfish Cook-off. Further, we are told that there will be moderate representation from the Class of '63 at the cocktail party and also from the Class of '73 as they will be coupling this event with the other activities that are planned. I ask for your patience while we restructure, and please do not hesitate to contact us in regard to any matter, request or concern that we may be able to assist you with. As soon as we are complete, an event schedule for the calendar year will be published.

Echoes from the Past – Grey Wolves

This Volume of 'Echos' we will be exploring an aspect of Saint Paul's that I didn't know about until I experienced it. I had heard of the 'Grey Wolves' and their monthly First Friday meetings at Beck and Call Café but had never been able to attend. It so happened that on March 1st I had an open block in the morning rotation and no substitution.

What's an Associate Alumni Director to do? Well, find alumni. I did just that. I headed downtown and found them. They're not hard to find; I spotted the host of men that are indeed grey but more notably decked out in Saint Paul School gear: SPS hats, letter jackets, shirts, and pins. All things SPS! I approached and saw some familiar faces (i.e. Brother Alfred Baltz, FSC) and started shaking hands.

That was just the beginning. After a round of introductions and answering the questions about the date of my graduation from Saint Paul's (class of '88) they invited me to sit and join in. I did with relish. The stories started and the laughs followed. I answered questions about how things are going at Saint Paul's with delight and with a twinge of pride. I recounted the fine accomplishments of our present student body academically and athletically. These fine men took it all in and beamed with an esteem and satisfaction of knowing they too are still a part of the great legacy of the wolf pack.

I finished my omelet, grabbed a refill of coffee and offered my goodbyes. Walking out the door, still chuckling, I realized I just experienced a profound part of Saint Paul's: the living memory of its alumni. We hold in our very selves the heart and memory of Saint Paul's School and the mission of Saint John Baptist de La Salle. These Grey Wolves know that mission and make the effort to connect with that memory and each other at least once a month. They also have adopted a community service project: the cleaning and maintaining of the Columbia Street Landing. You can join them!

You should get yourself to Covington on the first Friday of each month at Beck and Call Café across from the court house. You don't HAVE to be Grey just an SPS wolf looking for the pack. Expect good food and good new friends!

Christian Brothers Relay

The Christian Brothers Relays began in the late 1960's and have remained legendary in the lore of our illustrious past and in the memories of the athletes who participated in them. As evidenced by archived photos, they were exceptionally well attended and were the pinnacle of the season. On our second year of resurrection, we have made great strides in terms of restoration to a former glory. This year's event began with a Vigil mass incorporating a representative from each of the attending schools with Fr. Matthew Clark as the celebrant. Several families from the visiting schools attended along with a large contingent of Christian Brothers who were in town for a District Day. A liturgical band comprised of an eclectic mix of members of the Saint Paul's family included Coach Legendre, the Simoneaux family, Andrew Mullet '12, along with several current students added a memorable touch to the nostalgia. The meet began with a prayer and, in keeping with past tradition, the honoring of Brother Kenneth Boesch for his years of dedicated service to his vocation as well as to Saint Paul's School. A worthy recipient, Brother Ken remained to the very end, handed out the meet awards, and addressed our victorious Wolves in quite a memorable team meeting.

Equally as exciting as the fellowship was the performance of our Saint Paul's Track and Field team. The meet results were as follows: 1.) Saint Paul's 165.5, 2.) Brother Martin 137.5, 3.) Holy Cross 78.5, 4.) Archbishop Rummel 72, 5.) Jesuit 69, 6.) St. Stanislaus 21.5, 7.) St. Charles Catholic 13

It was truly an honor and proud moment for Saint Paul's to host this event. We anticipate even more growth for next year and hope that you will come join in perpetuating the storied history.

Saint Joseph's Altar

Now that the Briggs Assembly Center has finally been completed, Saint Paul's can now flaunt its new modern look, spacious floor plan, and bright lights. As March rolls around the calendar year, the month holds a much cherished tradition in the hearts of our students and community. In celebration of the feast day of Saint Joseph on March 19, a very special parent of a Saint Paul's student puts on a Saint Joseph Altar annually. But the school does the altar a few days early so quietly in the early hours of Monday, March 11 students assembled for the blessing of the altar and enjoying the delicious traditional foods.

This Altar, flowing with flowers, grains, fruits, vegetables, seafood, wine, and sweets, pays homage to Saint Joseph in a unique way. The legend goes that during the Middle Ages a drought struck the island of Sicily. Famine and many other hardships railed the land. Fish died, rivers dried, and crops disappeared as the Sicilians desperately needed rain. The faithful people prayed to Saint Joseph that he would intercede to God for them, and the Sicilians promised that they would forever honor Saint Joseph if their petitions were granted. After days of deep prayer, God answered their cries for help. Rains began to fall, crops flourished, and fish filled the waters where there had been none. In his honor, they began to construct an altar every year in Saint Joseph's honor on his feast day. The Sicilians built the altar in three levels, representing the Holy Trinity.

Besides being an Italian tradition, the altar is also a New Orleans tradition and has made its way into the city of Covington but more specifically and recently into Saint Paul's School. About sixteen years ago, Doctor Ann Kay Logarbo, mother of senior Patrick Logarbo, Class of 2009 graduate Nick Logarbo, and Class of 2008 graduate Brian Logarbo, prayed to Saint Joseph as vehemently as the Sicilians of the Middle Ages when illness struck her elder brother. When things seemed grimmest, Ann Kay and her mother asked Saint Joseph to save her brother; in return, she would build an altar in his honor. Within two months, the brother beat his sickness and his health turned around. Ever since then, the Saint Joseph Altar has been at our school and this year marks its fifteenth year.

Large numbers of students and parent volunteers assisted Logarbo throughout the weekend with preparation of the food and altar itself. Students visited the altar during their religion classes with opportunities to feast on the many desserts and other items that had been placed on the altar in honor of St. Joseph. At lunchtime, Logarbo, along with a strong contingency of mothers from the Saint Paul's Mothers Club, offered a meal to every member of the student body and faculty, a welcome treat for most from the usual "iffy" cafeteria food. Delicious catfish, spaghetti, salad, and various pastas comprised most of the menu.

Before any feasting starts, however, the food is blessed. As tradition has it, if the food is not eaten, proper etiquette would require that a person buries it in the ground. Doctor Logarbo makes sure to adhere to these particular qualifications when organizing this awesome spectacle. Specifically labeled trash cans are used to collect the uneaten food and prepare it for burial.

This year's altar was dedicated to Mrs. Josie Gremillion, a former Saint Paul's parent and now a grandparent, who has worked on the altar each year. Saint Paul's School graciously appreciates Doctor Logarbo's hard work as this day is a particular favorite in the hearts of the student body.

Mother Son Brunch

On Sunday, March 17, Saint Paul's hosted the annual Mother-Son Brunch in the Briggs Assembly Center. The event is sponsored by the Mothers' Club, under the leadership of President Elizabeth Grashoff, who welcomed all the students and mothers. The morning began with a prayer service and the Liturgical Band provided the music. Senior Matthew Melancon and his mom Brenda read the first reading. Handsome Monica and his mom Melissa delivered the Gospel reading with Lisa, Josh and Alex Nunez giving the intercessions. Following the service, everyone was served a delicious brunch of either crab cakes or chicken, which were provided courtesy of Keith Young's Steakhouse. After everyone had finished their meal, Principal Brother Ray Bulliard, FSC introduced four eighth graders, who recited the short story "I'll Love You Forever," one of the hallmarks of the Mother-Son Brunch. Those students that read included Beren Brechtel, Christian Evans, Cameron Gary and Andrew Grashoff. Brother Ray then invited eight seniors to give reflections on their mothers. Seniors Bobby Bayer, Justin Elzy, Connor Mahony, Ryan Malone, Lyle Manion, Zach Mangrum, Ryan Martin, and Brian Schmitt each delivered humorous yet powerful reflections about the impact their mothers have had on them. The students and their mothers all seemed to enjoy the morning and the opportunity to spend some quality time with each other.

Brother Ray assured the grandparents that Saint Paul's was living up to each of the five parts of its mission statement. After the assembly, everyone was treated to a reception proved by the Saint Paul's Mothers' Club.

Louisiana State Penitentiary

During the month of March, the juniors went to the Angola State Penitentiary in Angola, Louisiana. At the prison, students toured the grounds, met with prisoners, and visited the lethal injection table. The students met in one of five chapels at the prison and talked with inmates called "trustees," prisoners that are trusted and given the responsibilities of giving talks and tours. Junior Tanner Leblanc said, "I guess the whole point of the trip was to show us what happens if we make bad decisions in our lives. We ate the food there; I cannot live off of that for the rest of my life." Junior Peter Yager had a similar revelation: "Angola helped me to broaden my perspective and experience a side of life that I have never before been acquainted with. After being exposed to the routine, stories, and struggles of the prisoners, I suddenly realized how good I have it and how all of it can change in an instant." Most of the inmates that the juniors spoke to wanted to leave the students with one thought: "Murder in Louisiana means life in prison. And life in Louisiana means life."

Audubon Zoo

On February 28th and March 1st the Freshman class split in half and headed to two different locations. The group pictured was the first to attend the zoo. While at the zoo, the students had a scavenger hunt to complete that would count toward their science classes. It was great seeing the boys, who were randomly assigned to their groups, work together to be sure they found each and every item on their lists. Watching these boys get to know other classmates, make new friends, and share many laughs was a wonderful experience. The spirit of brotherhood was in full bloom.

On Friday, March 1, the Saint Paul's Lacrosse team celebrated Senior Night, honoring 22 seniors in a pre-game ceremony and then gloried in a 20-2 victory over the Mandeville Skippers at Hunter Stadium lead by captain and senior Alex Autin. The seniors took pictures with their parents on the field prior to the game.

Most of the seniors started their lacrosse careers as eighth graders when the Lacrosse program began play in the 2009 season. They entered the program as boys, in a new school, and as beginners in a new sport. Many of them played in a 14-1 loss at Mandeville that first season. A lot has changed since then. The influence that Saint Paul's School has had on them is unmistakable. The players are no longer boys but have grown into young men with bright futures. They will graduate, while leaving the Saint Paul's Lacrosse team as one of the most successful programs in the region. With the win against Mandeville, the Wolves are 8-0 overall and 2-0 in LHSL Division 1 East play.

In the middle of Saint Paul's School's campus rests an old bulletin board that has seen better days. This wooden announcement sign used to be the center of attention covered with many papers: sports and academic schedules, upcoming social event flyers, and service opportunities sign-up sheets. But due to the more recent use of the school wide Wolf TV and the internet for the spread of knowledge and information around school, the Stadler Bulletin Board, which is the name of the wooden structure, has been left unused. Because the faculty and staff are constantly driven to improve the quality of our Lasallian school, our very own John Carambat, who teaches Biography instructor, John Carambat, and generous donor Kraig Schexnayder pose with the latest addition of art to the Saint Paul's campus.

Biography and is the head of the Graphic Design club at Saint Paul's, decided to create a painting that could cover an entire side of the two sided bulletin board. Influenced by the wolf pack drawing on the gym floor of the Gene Bennett Sports Complex, Mr. Carambat painted an image of a pack of wolves resting together in the wilderness. Within the painting are wolves of different ages: old, adult, and puppy wolves. The old wolves represent the many faculty members and alumni of Saint Paul's; the adult wolves symbolize the upper classmen of the school; and the wolf pups represent the lower classmen of our school.

Maybe the painting was too good. Although only being released for a few days, the student body immediately fell in love with it. But since the bulletin board is outside, Mr. Carambat's painting would be exposed to the elements. Unfortunately this artwork would not last long even after one rain shower. Fortunately for Mr. Carambat and the painting, Kraig Schexnayder, father of eighth grader, Koby Schexnayder, came to the rescue. Mr. Schexnayder is the owner of DocuCenter, a local printing company. He graciously partnered up with Mr Carambat, who was Kraig's graphic design teacher at LSU, and made an outdoor-weatherproof copy of his painting. The original copy will be hung up in LaSalle Hall. The donations of Kraig and John helped to make our already beautiful campus, a little better.
