Faith

On Monday, March 7, Saint Paul's students were treated to a St. Joseph Altar on campus in the Briggs Assembly Center. The Altar was especially appropriate for Saint Paul's School, since Saint Paul's is run by the Brothers of the Christian Schools, whose patron Saint is St. Joseph.

During their religion classes, students had the opportunity to view the altar and learn about the history of the St. Joseph Altar, which has its roots in Sicily and came to the New Orleans area with Sicilian immigrants. Tradition has it that the Sicilian people prayed to St. Joseph, their patron, to bring rain during a famine caused by a drought, and after their prayers were answered, made the first St. Joseph Altar.

Students appreciated the opportunity to learn about the history of the St. Joseph Altar and enjoy it with one another.

"The mothers did a phenomenal job educating us on the history of the St. Joseph Altar and made it a wonderful experience to enjoy as a school," said senior Rutger Fury.

During lunch, all Saint Paul's students and faculty were served a traditional lunch consisting of fried fish, salad, bread, various pasta dishes, sweet potato casseroles, and more by volunteers.

The Altar is organized by Doctor Ann Kay Logarbo, who receives help from dozens of volunteers to bake goods to place on the altar. Logarbo attributes a miracle that saved the life of a family member to St. Joseph and organizes the Altar annually in thanksgiving.

Celebrity Waiters' Dinner

Saint Paul's School held its annual Celebrity Waiters' Dinner on Thursday, March 3 on campus in the Briggs Assembly Center. The Celebrity Waiters' Dinner is one of Saint Paul's largest fundraisers each school year.

During Celebrity Waiters, donors compete to have the best table decorations and costumes, according to the year's theme, which was situational comedies this year. The Resource Bank table won first place in table decorations for a The Office themed table, followed by the second-place LabTrust Laboratory Services MASH themed table and Lisa Barnett's third-place Green Acres themed table.

The Saint Paul's Mothers' Club and Vintage Mom's won first place in the costumes category for their MASH costumes, followed by the second-place Paretti Family of Dealership's Three's Company costumes and third place Francis and Keren Davis's third place Morgus the Magnificent costumes.

Furthermore, each table is attended to by a "celebrity" waiter, frequently a Saint Paul's faculty member or alumnus, who competes to earn the most tips in "Wolf Bucks," which are purchased by the attendees.

This year's top celebrity waiter was John Donahue, followed by Second place Karen Lindsey and third place Rhett Briggs.

Saint Paul's religion teacher and campus minister Jeffrey Ramon served as a celebrity waiter and appreciated the competitive element of the night, "It was a fun night, and the concept of wolf bucks and tipping the waiters adds another layer of fun to it, and it was all for the betterment of Saint Paul's."

The evening also included a live auction with items such as a football autographed by Drew Brees; a dinner catered by Dakota's Restaurant and served by the President of Saint Paul's, Brother Ray Bulliard, FSC; balls signed by the state champion Saint Paul's soccer team and district champion Saint Paul's basketball team, jewelry donated by David Pierson Designs, and a weekend getaway in New Orleans.

Guests also had the chance to enter a fifty-fifty raffle and dinner at seven upscale restaurants. All proceeds from the event go to the Renaissance Program, which supports tuition assistance, faculty training, the robotics program, the eco-car program, college tour, and more programs that help enrich the lives of our students at Saint Paul's.

Brother Ray Bulliard, FSC, opened the event with a prayer and then introduced Alexander Sibley, a member of the Saint Paul's class of 2011, who sang the National Anthem while the Saint Paul's Air Force Junior ROTC Color Guard presented the colors. Click HERE to listen to Alexander sing.

Then, Brother Ray introduced Brett Lott, a member of the Saint Paul's class of 2007, who gave a testimony to the value of a Saint Paul's education. Brett's speech may be heard HERE.

Attendees were then treated to a dinner catered by Dakota's Restaurant consisting of roasted pecan dirty rice stuffed quail, Creole succotash, and herb quail jus and a dessert of buttermilk pound cake, lemon crème, and fresh blueberries. The dinner was served by Saint Paul's Student Hosts.

Soccer All Metro Team

Saint Paul's seniors Michael Boudreaux, Austin Wiles, and Colin Ross qualified for the Times Picayune All Metro Boys Soccer Team.

Marian Players

A classic campus favorite production returned once again to the Alumni Memorial Theater after an absence of almost eight years. “Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat,” opened Wednesday, March 9th. The actors in the play tell the story of Joseph from the book of Genesis. With charming narration, an endearing main character, and varied musical styles, the play promised something for everyone.

This marks the third time the Marian Players have produced the show in conjunction with Director Denny Charbonnet.

The play centers around the biblical story of Joseph and his eleven brothers set centuries before the birth of Christ. Beginning with Joseph being sold into slavery by his brothers over envy and jealousy, the play observes Joseph’s faith, hopelessness, and overall devotion to God as he attempts to overcome all that life has dealt him.

This theme of forgiveness and mercy can be seen over and over again throughout the show. It is the mercy of Pharaoh that saves Joseph from a life spent in prison; it is Joseph’s forgiveness of his brothers that ultimately reunites his entire family; and it is all together the mercy of God that gives Joseph all he has.

The leading cast included Oliver Sibley as Joseph, Emily Ruli and Caitlian Smith as the Narrators, Nick Oubre as Jacob, Margaret Baglow, Hailey Bereziuk, and Cathleen Sanborn as the Trio, Bradley del Rio as Reuben, Shane Davis as Simeon, Patrick Stewart as Levi, Sam Kenney as Naphthali, Chris Damare as Isaachar, Reagan Hill as Asher, Jack Fleming as Dan, Spencer Albright as Zebulun, Nico Arcuri as Gad, Kyle Shiell as Benjamin, and Justin McClesky as Judah.
