

MEET THE WOLVES

(Week 11)

Week 11 is already here for “Meet the Wolves,” and this week we are introducing Nick Stanton. Nick is a 17-year-old junior who plays both the guard and post positions for the Wolves. He is another native of Mandeville, Louisiana, and is the son of and Mike and Christy and the brother of Michael and Brooke Stanton. Nick is also a member of the varsity football team where he plays as a wide receiver. This team really benefits from the size, physicality, and smart play Nick brings from his football background. To get to know a little more about Nick, he was asked the following questions:

What is it about basketball that made you want to play in high school?

Nick wanted to continue his basketball career in high-school because he has enjoyed watching and playing basketball for his whole life.

What is your favorite or funniest SPS basketball memory so far?

Nick said that he will never forget the time before a game last year when he shot a half-court shot that ended up hitting Jace in the back of the head! I've lived that pain before to Jace...

What are you looking forward to the most for this season? Any goals?

Nick is also focused on the big goal like many of his teammates as he too wants to bring in the first state championship in this program's history.

How do you want your teammates to remember you?

Nick would like for his teammates to remember him as a guy that brought energy into every game. Energy drives so many aspects of the game of basketball!

If you could create a signature shoe, what would it be called?

Nick creating a totally original signature shoe, said that he would call his creation “The Stallions.” These shoes give you boosted energy allowing you to feel refreshed throughout the game and especially during crunch times. We do not know if Nick has a thing for cars, but it sounds like these shoes give you enough horsepower to do the unthinkable and average 32.0 minutes a game like it's a breeze! This may be the most strategic shoe creation in that more energy will aid in almost every other aspect of the game.

Are you more of a round earth guy, or do you agree with Kyrie Irving that the Earth is flat?

Nick furthers the argument for the round Earth in the debate. He too feels as though Kyrie should know better due to his attendance at Duke University for one year. It seems as though the verdict for the Wolves on this debate is becoming very clear, but there is still a few more weeks left in the series, and there is no telling what opinions will be shared.

Who is your favorite member of the Ball family and why? (Lavar, LaMelo, LiAngelo, Lonzo)

Nick is another fan of the NBA rookie, Lonzo. Nick is mostly a fan of the oldest brother because he has made it to the NBA and has a quiet demeanor. I can agree with Nick in that he likes how Lonzo lets his talent speak for itself despite all the attention and distractions he faces.

Do you have any plans after high school?

Although Nick also has another year to begin thinking about his future after high-school, he stated that he does plan to attend college and has dreams of becoming a physical therapist. Nick also said he will consider playing college sports as the opportunities arise.

Is there anything else you would like to share about yourself?

Nick is another XBOX fanatic during his free time. With so many players being a fan of playing XBOX, the next debate may be about who really is the best XBOX player on the team!
